

Bobby Orr Team Canada 1976 Canada Cup Game-Worn Jersey at Auction

Auction Ends November 1, 2011

Delson, Quebec, Canada – October 4, 2011 – Bobby Orr captivated the hockey world at the 1976 Canada Cup when he seized his sole international moment in one final flash of brilliance. Despite the effects of cumulative injuries that left him to rely on one wonky knee, Bobby led his country to the inaugural Canada Cup title and was named tournament MVP.

This sensational “Orr” 1976 Canada Cup number 4 game-worn jersey represents the crowning achievement of the meteoric career of arguably the greatest player ever to lace ‘em up. Bobby was on the ice when Darryl Sittler scored his dramatic overtime winner and wearing this white Team Canada jersey, which he then took off and gifted to Czechoslovakia’s Oldrich Machac in an on-ice exchange at the Montreal Forum.

Classic Auctions is honored to offer for sale Bobby Orr’s Team Canada 1976 Canada Cup game-worn jersey. Our record-obliterating $1.275 million sale at auction of Paul Henderson’s 1972 Team Canada “The Goal” game-worn jersey demonstrates the incredibly powerful emotional and patriotic attachment these treasures illicit from Canadians and historical memorabilia collectors.
